of the imperial troops at Hong Kong, telegraphed today that he had occupied Nanking at four o'clock on Monday.Yu Chang capitulated to the im-leaders wanting to compromise and suggesting some slight alterations in the government program.There is much jubilation here over the imperial forces' victory in the court circles.The merchants are overjoyed at the prospect of a resumption of business and the re-establishment of order with the removal of the menace to the

Hong Kong, Nov. 28.—The west river is still regarded unsafe for passengers, traffic and business owing to the pirates who attack vessels in great numbers.In regard to the prevalent piracy on the Shihon river the military government of Canton has sent a deputy to the English consul here to express regret at the occurrences and state that the two gunboats will be sent there immediately.

Fighting at Nanking.

Nanking, Nov. 28.—Some fighting has taken place to the northward of the city. A bombardment is imminent.
There is reason to believe that Lieutenant General Peng Kuo Chang, commander of the imperial troops, has discovered a treacherous plot to reopen the gates of the city.Much shooting has been heard inside the city. All foreigners, except the Japanese consul and his guard have now left. All the foreign warships have withdrawn out of range.Terrible Slaughter.

end of high-class entertainment in the metropolis this week. In addition torian Sutton some time ago. Both men have been practicing diligently for the match in this city for several weeks, and both have been playing in excellent form. Hoppe has had George Slosson for a trial horse, while Sutton has been engaged in daily practice with Will Fox, the former amateur champion, and several other experts equally well qualified to force him to his best.To Improve Tennessee River.

TO END MISERY OF A DYING PATIENT?Legal Question to be Settled in Case of Two Shakers Who Cholo-formed a Consumptive.Kalamazoo, Fla., November 28.— Rarely has a grand jury in this state or elsewhere been confronted with a more delicate and difficult task than is the grand jury which met here today to take up the case of the two Shakers, Brother Robert B. Gillette and Sister Elizabeth Sears, charged with wilful murder for having caused the death of another member of the Shaker colony near Ashton. Sister Sadie L. Marchant, on August 22, last, by having administered chloroform to her.More than ordinary interest is attached to this case and the action of the grand jury will be awaited with sympathetic attention throughout the country, for the case in question involves a striking example of a conflict between humane sympathy and the law and places upon the grand jury the burden of deciding whether enthusiasm is justifiable under certain conditions or must rigidly be adjudicated a crime, no matter what may be the surrounding conditions.Sister Sadie L. Marchant, one of the members of the small Shaker colony which owns a farm of about 7,000 acres around Lakes Alhikar, near Ashton, died on August 22, last, after having suffered for some time from consumption. After her death it was rumored that her Shaker friends had relieved her sufferings and, at her own request had "loosed her out" of her torturesome life by administering chloroform to her. The matter was brought to the attention of the authorities and an investigation was made. Brother Gillette and Sister Sears, who had been with Sister Marchant at the time of her death, admitted without hesitation that they had helped Sister Marchant to a painless and peaceful death by giving her chloroform.Upon their own admission Brother Gillette and Sister Elizabeth were arrested and brought before Judge Parker for a preliminary hearing. They repeated their admission and added that they had administered the anesthetic upon the urgent prayer of Sister Marchant. They stated that Sister Marchant, they stated, had suffered from tuberculosis. One of her lungs was completely destroyed by the terrible disease and the ravages of the disease in the other lung caused the patient excruciating pain.Sister Sadie had always longed for a peaceful and painless death and, when the end approached and her sufferings became unbearable, she prayed her friends to have mercy and to help her to a quiet and painless death. Upon her own, often expressed wish they had given her the chloroform."Before God and man I believe that we did exactly right," declared Brother Gillette and he added that his conscience was perfectly at ease and he did not believe that he had committed a wrong. If his act had been unwise, only his great feeling of sympathy for the deceased Sister prompted him to commit it.After a formal hearing Brother Gillette and Sister Elizabeth were held in a charge of murder, but Judge Parker admitted them to bail. Sister Elizabeth in $2,000, Brother Gillette in $5,000. The other members of the colony promptly furnished the bail.At the same time the coroner began an investigation of the case and, on September 6 the body of Sister Sadie was exhumed. The medical examination of the body is said to have shown that the disease of Sister Sadie had not been so far advanced as was stated by Brother Gillette and that, judging from the condition of her lungs she might have lived for some time. The coroners jury thereupon gave a verdict, finding Brother Gillette guilty of wilful murder.Brother Gillette was requested and held to await the action of the grand jury without being admitted to bail.
Sister Elizabeth, not having been indicted by the coroners jury, was permitted to remain under bail.It is understood that no attempt will be made on the part of Brother Gillette to deny the simple facts of the case. As there is nothing in the laws of the State of Florida that could be construed into sanctioning the practice of euthanasia under any condition, it is feared that the grand jury will have no alternative in the case but will be obliged to indict.GERMANS APPROVE OF LORD GREY'S SPEECH
IN PARLIAMENTEngland Views Effects With Favor And Will Soon Have Chance to Prove Sincerity.(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, Nov. 28.—The consulatory corps of the speeches of British foreign secretary Sir Edward Grey, and promoter Aquila and their expressed desire for improved relations between Germany and England in the future, are cordially reached in government circles here. It is significantly added, however, that the British government soon will have an opportunity to demonstrate the sincerity of the disclaimer of its ministers and the theory that one of the aims of British policy is to stand in the way of German expansion, and to block its every project. No indication is given as to the field in which this opportunity will occur, but the touchstone perhaps will be found in the Madrid railway.London, Nov. 28.—Over night consideration of Sir Edward Grey's speech of yesterday on the international situation in the house of commons has served to emphasize the favorable view taken here of the effects of his utterances. There is some disappointment at comment of the German newspapers but it is realized their criticisms were written before the full text of the speech had reached

Kennedy and Palzer to Meet.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Nov. 28.—Eight followers hereabouts are looking forward with much interest to the ten-round bout between Tom Kennedy and Al Palzer, which is to be pulled off in the Clermont Club, in Brooklyn, tomorrow night. The fans remember the sensational contest these two fought last summer at the National Sporting Club, which Kennedy lost by seven rounds. At that time "Big Tom" claimed he was not wounded enough to stand the terrific pace.
Since the agreement for the coming fight was signed he has trained faithfully and will have no chance to expose a defeat with the old cry of "not in condition."Shop and Ship

WRITES ON WHAT WISCON.

Has Statistics to Show The Old Badger Realm Is a Good Place to Settle In.(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Wis., Nov. 28.—To substantiate his statements made on Wisconsin Day at the Chicago land show regarding Canadian efforts to secure American settlers, Secretary of State James A. Frear, a member of the Wisconsin state board of immigration, quoted Canadian government authority to show how Wisconsin, Minnesota and other northern states are being exploited for Canada's benefit. Being more specific than in his statement made at the Land Show, Mr. Frear referred to Canadian immigration Commissioner Walker's publication of an estimate that during the twelve months ending April 1, 1912, at least 200,000 new settlers will remove from the states to Canada."According to the Canadian Monthly," said Mr. Frear, "Commissioner Walker says as authority for his statement that from April 1, to November 1, 1911, during a period of seven months, 93,573 'Yuknees' crossed the border declaring their intention of living in Canada and carrying with them effects or money averaging in value $1,000 each. The Canadian government is working to secure settlers who can show the amount of property in each case. The economic loss to the states, therefore, reaches $93,573, 000; and, if his estimate is correct, it will reach $200,000,000 before the twelve months elapse. It is a familiar rule that aside from actual money possessed, every new settler is worth approximately from $500 to $1,000 to the community because of earning capacities. This intangible estimate need not be considered because the facts are sufficiently impressive apart from such estimate.Continuing, the Canadian commissioner frankly states that within the past ten years the number of settlers removing from the states to Canada has reached 687,240. At the average rate of $1,000 each, an estimate of their belongings carried from the states totals a direct loss to the United States of $687,240,000 within ten years, nearly one-third of which will be received by Canada during the present Canadian fiscal year, and a portion of which has been taken from Wisconsin land, according to statistics, Minnesota is a greater sufferer than our own state.Glancing at the other side of the picture, some significant facts are disclosed which merit the widest publicity if we would meet the threats thus made by the Canadian immigration agents. According to government statistics, Wisconsin averages exactly eighteen bushels of wheat to the acre, leading the non-irrigated states in yield. The same yield of sixteen bushels for the average per acre for Canada, and wheat is the one big crop raised there, because of climatic conditions. The Calgary "Daily Herald" of November 14, 1911, states the recruits of wheat at Winnipeg, Canada's grain center on that day as 411 cars.
Only eight cars of wheat graded No. 1; fifty-eight cars No. 2; one hundred and thirty-seven cars No. 3; ninety-four cars No. 4; thirty-five cars No. 5; sixty-three cars No. 6; and sixteen cars graded only feed. The highest price paid on November 14 in Calgary was 83 1/2 cents, the lowest 42 cents, and the average price paid for wheat on that day, according to this Canadian authority, was 65 cents.On the same day a Wisconsin farmer who raised from his land received 20 cents per bushel, and with a much larger yield per acre for his barley, $1.02 per bushel for the best grade was received by the Wisconsin farmer.
Aside from these grains, our farmers with their diversified crops, found a ready market for butter, cheese, eggs, potatoes, and a score of other products.However, confining the comparison to wheat, the Wisconsin farmer averaged $1.50 income from his wheat per acre as compared with every dollar received from his Canadian neighbor, and it must be remembered that it is not the farmer in like manner on all other products, covering transportation charges of over 3,000 miles before reaching Winnipeg, and this must be considered in ascertaining net return.

SALARY OF SEALER TO BE TWO HUNDRED

COMMON COUNCIL FIXED IT AT THAT FIGURE AT SESSION LAST EVENING.

EVANS ASKS FOR MORE

Says City Should Not Make Farce of Office.—Council Orders Allevy Cleaned.—Other Business.

In conformity with the new state weights and measures law and the recommendation of State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery, the Common Council last evening fixed the salary of the city sealer of weights and measures at $200. This action was taken on the motion of Alderman Hall, the only dissenting vote being that of Alderman Shurtliff. Earlier in the session Mayor Nichols urged the Council to fix the salary sufficiently high so as not to make a farce of the office and told them of the experience of Hollet which at first fixed the salary at $100, and later, under the pressure of the state bureau, raised it to $600. Alderman Evans submitted an amendment to the motion of Alderman Hall, raising the salary to $300. The amendment was lost by a vote of five to four. Another communication from Commissioner Emery was read informing them that the city must secure a full set of approved standard weights and measures for the use of the city sealer, otherwise they would be bought by the state at the expense of the city. He also submitted a model city ordinance governing weights and measures, drawn by the National Bureau.

The subject of the sealer's salary gave rise to considerable informal discussion between the members of the Council. Some were of the opinion that the old method of fees was entirely satisfactory and that the city should pay as little more as possible for the position as the sealer received under the old system. If a good man could not be obtained at the salary fixed it could be raised later.

The other business of the session was principally of a routine character. Alderman Hall of the finance committee, submitted the salary list for November and the City Clerk was directed to draw orders for their payment. The sum of $2,000 was voted to transfer from the interest fund to the general fund, the amount of bills of the Janesville Water Company, $3,761.50. The appointment of Edward H. H. as special policeman during the Manufacturers' exhibition was ratified and his pay allowed.

Alderman Shurtliff of the highway committee presented the report of the street improvement committee on the cost of the Academy street paving and the report of the amount due the Central States Bridge Company, in part payment for the Racine street bridge, $1,500. On the motion of Alderman Spohn the owners of property abutting on the alley in the rear of the Norcross and other buildings were ordered to clean up the alley within two days. The Chicago and North-Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway companies were ordered to replank the Five Points and Jackson street crossings on the motion of Alderman Evans.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE OF THEFT

Albert Dorsey, Alleged to Have Stolen Pair of Trousers From James Dillon of La Prairie.

Albert Dorsey, whose escapades brought him to the attention of the local police on previous occasions, was captured by them yesterday after an exciting chase, and this morning was arraigned before Judge Pfiffel, pleaded not guilty to stealing a pair of trousers, worth four dollars from the home of James Dillon of La Prairie, on November 26. The complaint was not able to appear in court this morning so the trial was set for ten o'clock Friday morning. Dorsey's bail was fixed at $500 and in default of the same he will await trial behind the bars. The complaint thinks that Dorsey got the idea that he carried a considerable quantity of bills in his trouser pockets but says that the thief who took them did not get more than ten cents.

INSTITUTE MAY LOCATE HERE

Directors of the United Doctors Look Over Field—Were Entertained by Committee.

It is probable that Janesville will be selected by the United Doctors as the location for their new Wisconsin Medical Institute. Doctors Elston, Goslin and Stone, three of the directors of the United Doctors, have been making a tour of the larger cities of the state with a view to selecting the location for their new Wisconsin Institute.

While being shown about the city by a committee today, these doctors expressed considerable admiration for Janesville and it is hoped that they may be induced to locate here in preference to Madison or La Crosse.

The United Doctors as the name implies, is an association of medical experts who have made the curing of chronic diseases their life work. These doctors have formed a new system of medicine which has been used with marvelous success in their various institutes throughout the country.

Of late years the United Doctors have been branching out and establishing institutes in western states. During the past two years they have established institutes in Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, all of which are now in a highly prosperous condition. The many marvelous cures in cases of old chronic and deep seated diseases has excited comment both from the press and pulp and attracts patients from all over the country.

More information in regard to United Doctors will appear in these columns tomorrow.

If these famous specialists do decide to locate here it will be a great boon to the sick, as they can then secure the benefit of this wonderful new treatment without making a long journey away from home.

Today.

Mrs. Thos. Driver and daughter, Hazel, are spending the day in Janesville.

BROWNS DEFEATED BY BLUES LAST EVENING

Good Bowling by O'Donnell, Who Breaks League Records Helped Visitors to Win.

In an exciting match the Browns won two out of three games from the Blues in the bowling series at Hockett's alleys last evening. The final game went to the Browns with a margin of twenty points. In the second game the Blues showed great form and were able to out-strip their opponents. It was in this game that O'Donnell, captain of the Blues, ran up the highest score of the season, 224. With this feat of their captain to help them, the Blues managed to win their only game of the evening with the margin of one hundred and twenty-seven points.

In the last game the Blues were unable to keep pace with their opponents and were beaten by a margin of twenty-seven points. Although in the grand total the Blues won out by a margin of eighty points, nevertheless they were defeated in the series and had to chalk themselves up with two games lost. Tonight the Cardinals will clash with the Cardinals who are championship holders of the league.

HAD FIVE DOLLARS AND DIDN'T KNOW IT

John Smith, Arranged for Drunkenness Could Not Account for Its Presence on His Person.

"I got in with the wrong bunch and must have took too much of them hardened spirits," said John Smith after pleading guilty to being found intoxicated on River Street, before Judge Fifeled this morning. Smith, who is a painter by trade, works for Frank O'Brien, a farmer. Last evening O'Brien notified the police that Smith had started for Janesville with a load of straw and had not returned and that the money in Smith's possession belonged to him. Smith acknowledged to the court this morning that he had sold the straw but said he had not been paid for it. He brought no money with him except eighty cents that belonged to him. Smith was very much perplexed, however, when Policeman Champion told him that over five dollars had been found on his person, and was unable to account for its source. Judge Fifeled sentenced him to a fine of three dollars and costs or six days in jail. He took jail sentence but is confident that Mr. O'Brien will pay his fine.

BOOSTS OWN STATE

In property and in farmers who create property. "The Canadian government is reported to be spending $200,000 annually on its immigration work. Its agents are established in Wisconsin and in other states, and at the Chicago Land Show its literature depicting the advantages of Alberta, Edmonton and Saskatoon was corded up in pre-tentious stacks in one of the corner of the Coliseum building on Wisconsin Day.

Minnesota appropriated $25,000 annually for immigration work, while the legislature of Wisconsin only appropriated $7,000 with which to pay salaries of an office force and to meet all expenses of advertising Wisconsin's resources.

The state board of immigration travels at its own expense and works without extra compensation seeking to make the most of Wisconsin's wonderful opportunities. Those who discount the Canadian efforts in this state are not familiar with the situation, but a broader understanding of our own advantages will stop the movement to Canada and will acquaint our people with Wisconsin, which for markets, water, soil and climate and home-making opportunities is without a rival either north or south of the Canadian border."

Thanksgiving

REHBERG'S

IT IS FITTING at this season of Thanksgiving that we should have a proper appreciation of the abundant bounty of Nature in providing the wool that makes the cloth with which we cover our bodies. Each year millions of sheep graze in countless countries that the season's shearing may adequately supply our needs; the rain that makes the grass grow green; the sunshine that nourishes it; all these together with the wondrous handwork of willing men combine to make possible the beautiful fabrics that keep our bodies warm; our eyes delighted.

AND OF THESE fabrics the skilled workers have moulded garments in strict keeping with the beauty and worth of the fabrics on which they worked. In outer coats there are many; in suits many. Every woolen of worth; every style of authority is here. Special prices prevail for tomorrow on suits and overcoats. Interesting Reading

Just had a party in from a very long distance from Janesville for some dental work for his daughter. "Told me the reason he came all this way was that "I had done some work for his wife over fourteen years ago, and it had lasted so well that he had confidence in me."

"That's the way I like to treat people."

"Once, my friend, always my friend," if good work and moderate prices mean anything to you.

Special good program tonight.

Be sure to attend.

Poultry Lower Than Former Years

My prediction made in June of lower prices this fall is verified. If you will look through the Produce columns of any Chicago paper you will find that Poultry is selling at lower prices than for several years, the reason for which is the enormous crop which is estimated by the old heads to be one-third heavier than ever before. The great flood of Poultry has but just started to move and there will be no relief from the present low market until February or early Spring months.

I Will Have Live Poultry Car at Jansville Wednesday, Dec. 6th near the east side freight house, C. M. & St. P. tracks, and receive all Poultry delivered at following prices if delivered with empty crops:

Hens and Springs, 7 cts per lb.; Geese, 8 cts.; Ducks, 9 cts.; old Cocks, 5 cts.

I will also load at Evansville Friday, Dec. 1st; Footville, Dec. 2nd; Edgerton, Dec. 4th; Whitewater, Dec. 5th; and pay same prices as advertised here.

There is more than double the amount of poultry in the vicinity of Jansville that will be required to supply the local butchers, and farmers will receive below my prices if shipping by express.

Deliver your poultry to my car and get correct weights and full market price.

NUTS TO BE HIGHER FOR THANKSGIVING

Chicken's Cold Feet Causes Egg Farm—Ine. Butter Selling at 35¢@39¢ per Pound

All kinds of nuts are going up as Thanksgiving approaches and the local markets will probably be affected before Thursday though no change in price has taken place yet. Also Creamery butter is now selling at from 35¢@39¢ a pound today. In an address before an Illinois convention a chicken authority stated the other day that the combination of wet and cold weather froze the chickens' combs and feet in that this stopped them from laying and caused the prevalent fresh egg famine. The higher grades of fresh eggs have not been quoted in Chicago for two weeks and very few of the lower grades can be had. Local dealers are getting from 20¢@25¢ today.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Every-day Thanksgiving.

WE solemnly give thanks once a year, make a point as it were, of clearing off our debt of this kind with one grand united effort, so that we can check it up and say complacently, "Well, that's done with, thank goodness, for another year."

But why shouldn't we have a little thanksgiving every day? Surely we have reason enough, haven't we? And it would make the day go more happily and more brightly to inject a little of the Thanksgiving spirit into it, wouldn't it?

We look back in wholesale fashion over the year, and we see plenty to give thanks for. And we have a very happy day thinking over our blessings. But if we distributed this spirit along, a little into each day, we surely would have a happier year.

Charles Kingsley says, "Thank God every morning when you get up, that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best, will breed in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and content and a hundred virtues the idle never know."

And we certainly do have plenty to give thanks for, if we will see the joy and the recompense in these little every-day things. If we can look beyond the mere things themselves to what lies in them, they all hold a joy for us and a cause for thanksgiving. We should try to see the immaterial in the material, as some one has put it, "God in common things and common tasks."

To make clothes clean and sweet-smelling on Monday, to dust a room well on Tuesday, to kiss a bumped forehead on Wednesday, may all seem very humdrum and prosaic. But back of these tasks is the building into our character of thoroughness and reliability and love, and those things which are enduring and worth while, and, in the end, joy giving. And to do this and to come to know and possess those things is a cause for thanksgiving.

So we can have an every-day Thanksgiving, and we can draw the cause for this thanksgiving right from the every-day things all about us. We do not need to wait for a stated day to look back over the year and think of the big things that give us cause to rejoice, the clever stroke in business whereby we made a lot of money, the reception at which we became acquainted with a social leader we had long desired to know. Rather, we can have an every-day thanksgiving, a little tune of joy in our heart every night, over the order and beauty we have wrought into our home, or the love that is growing deeper and tenderer and stronger for us in the heart of the one we love, or the joy in the fuller measure in our husband's eyes, or the joy of it, if we do in the right spirit, the things that lie to our hands, and see with the spiritual eye, the good in our every-day tasks.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

DO YOU like surprises?

I am so fond of them myself that I feel sure you do. Remember sometimes when you were little, how father, mother or big brother would put a stick of candy, a many colored pencil or some other childish treasure under your plate; and remember how delighted you were when you came to the table, saw that inverted plate and how the treasure beneath it became twice as delightful by reason of being a "surprise"? Remember, too that time when big brother came home and said right out of a clear sky, "How would you like to go to the circus this afternoon?" Of course, you do and you dream this afternoon. As well as if it were yesterday how you jumped up and down and cried "Goody" or "Bully," according to your sex. Surely the reason that whole excursion stands out so vivid in your mind is that it was lifted out of the ordinary by being a "surprise."

Well, then, since we've decided that you like surprises, as well as I do, I'm sure you'll want to hear of a new kind of surprise that Molly, the little stenographer lady, told us of the other afternoon. The author man was glum. No, it wasn't because the magazine market was as bad as the stock market. No, it wasn't anything else we could suggest. Very well, then, if we must know, it was simply because he was sick to death of himself and his vile temper. Just the other day he had made up his mind more firmly than ever before, that he would control it and just this morning he had failed egregiously.

"That's the way it always is," he concluded, "over and over again I make up my mind that I will do better next time, and even while I'm making that promise I know that the very next time I get angry, I'll say every bitter, unwholesome thing that comes into my head. I'm almost ready to chuck the whole thing."

We were all silent for a minute. We knew that the author man had considerable provocation for temper, but we couldn't very well say that.

Molly spoke finally. "Did you ever try giving yourself surprises, David?"

"Don't know what you mean, Molly," said the author man with the lifelessness of complete discouragement. "You know," explained Molly, "it's this way. I used to have just the same feeling about getting up in the morning—that is, I'd promise myself every night that I would get up when called in the morning, and even while I was promising I'd know I wouldn't. Well, one morning when I was lying there thinking I ought to get up, but wouldn't, it popped into my head, 'Why not give yourself a surprise by getting up this minute?' And so I did. I jumped right out of bed and it really was a pleasant surprise to myself. And a nice one, too, for I had time enough to dress in comfort, go out in the garden and pick a bunch of pansies for my desk. And I've done it a lot since—giving myself surprises about different things, I mean. I don't know how much putting it that way helps. When I come home tired, throw myself on the couch, and don't feel a bit like helping mother get supper, I'll think, 'This is a grand chance to give myself a surprise by helping up quick and setting the table. I do it and when I sit down to supper, I can tell you, I feel better than if I hadn't.'"

By the time Molly had reached this point in her narration, the author man's glumness had vanished. He was looking down at her with the beautiful smile of amused tenderness that we usually keep for children.

Molly looked up and caught the smile. "You are laughing at me," she accused.

"Indeed, I'm not," said the author man. "On the contrary, I'm going to surprise myself the very next time I get a chance."

"Truly," cried Molly rapturously. She thinks the author man very wonderful and regards his approval as a sort of accolade.

"Molly," broke in the wants-to-be-critic, who had been listening with unwelcome attention, "I say, Molly, five times you've promised me you'd take that tramp to Beat's Hill and then put it off. Now I want to go this afternoon and I hope you are going to surprise yourself by putting on your duds and coming."

"I guess he's got you this time," said the author man. "But why don't you, Molly? I feel just like a tramp and I'll come, too, if I may."

"Oh, will you, David?" cried Molly with delight. "I'll go this minute."

But whisper while I tell you a queer secret. I don't think the wants-to-be-critic was the least bit pleased.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING. The indispensable Thanksgiving Berry Served in Sauces and Sherbet.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Most of the cranberries in the markets come from New Jersey, Wisconsin and Cape Cod. The Cape berries are considered to be the best and include sixty per cent of all the crop in this country. Some good berries are now raised on the Pacific coast in smaller amounts. The cranberry, like other fruits and berries, has improved under scientific culture and there are several varieties varying in size and shape as some are round like a cherry and others are long and oval.

Wash cranberries before cooking for their skins are slightly oily and easily hold dust and germs. As a rule cranberry pickers are engaged for the cheapness of their labor, their re-heat the pulp. Add the sugar and when melted turn out if it is to be used as a sauce. For jelly cook the strained pulp five minutes, add the sugar, cook one minute and turn into small molds for individual service. Cranberry trappes may be served with the turkey instead of the usual cranberry sauce, or jelly, or it may come next after that course. Cook one quart of cranberries in one quart of water about ten minutes, or until all the berries are soft and can be crushed with a spoon. Strain through a fine wire cloth, or press through a fine cheese cloth to take out the skins, add the juice of two oranges and two lemons and two cups of sugar. Freeze to a stiff mush and serve in hand-dipped sherbet glasses. For a Thanksgiving dinner party it will probably be necessary to double this recipe, but the proportion of one pint of berries, one orange, one lemon and one cup of sugar should be observed.

Another recipe for sherbet calls for four cups of cranberries cooked in the same amount of water and strained. Now add the juice of one orange and one lemon and two cups of sugar. Cook, freeze and when nearly stiff enough add the whites of two eggs beaten with one-quarter cup of powdered sugar and finish freezing.

Spiced cranberries are sometimes served with game. Cook four cups of cranberries with two cups of water until tender, add one and one-half cups of sugar, two level tablespoons of cinnamon and three-quarters level spoon of cloves. Cook five minutes and turn into jelly glasses and seal.

For a pleasant conserve cook one cup of berries in water to cover until tender. Press the juice from one orange and scrape the white part from the peel. Cut the yellow peel into the shreds and cook in a little water until tender. Put four cups of cranberries into a sauce pan, add the raisins, the orange juice and shredded peel and one cup of water. Cook ten minutes, add two cups of sugar and cook until the sugar is melted.

A pink color can be added to many desserts by using cranberry juice and there is nothing like it for sherbet. Bottle the juice when cranberries are at their lowest price. Cook six cups of cranberries in five cups of water until tender, add a pint of sugar, drain over night, through a jelly bag, and measure the juice. Put the juice in a preserving kettle with one cup of granulated sugar to every two cups of strained juice. Boil five minutes and seal in bottles.

Good berries may be kept for months without loss if picked over, washed and placed in fruit jars. The jars must then be filled to overflowing with cold water and the tops fastened down. The water of the berries acts as a preservative. If kept in small quantities exposed to the air the berries dry, shrivel and deteriorate.

Stewed and strained cranberries make an excellent filling for pies and tarts. If a pie is filled with uncooked cranberries each berry must be washed with a sharp knife. A combination of cranberries and raisins makes a good pie filling.

FRUIT MENUS.

A reader asks whether it is better to eat one fruit or several at a meal. In the menus recently given, several were suggested for each meal, not because it is thought best but in deference to the custom of eating several articles at the same meal. The fruits are divided into acid, like the lemon, sub-acid, like the peach, and sugar-fruits, like the fig. All these harmonize passably, yet it would be better to keep them classified. Prunes, dates and figs are slower of digestion than apples, peaches and oranges. The former class are appropriate in the evening, but acid fruit is best in the morning, as suggested in the saying, resulting from the experience of people who were more observant than we in regard to the ordinary effects of diet. "An apple in the morning is golden, at noon silver and in the evening leaden." In this connection, it should be noted that the banana is not a fruit.

PROPER CARE.

DU MAURIER, speaking of the beauty of man, the beauty of woman, the heavenly beauty of the little child, which is sweetest and best of all, says, "Indeed it is woman, lovely woman, whose beauty falls the shortest for sheer lack of proper physical training."

We may be busy with our hands, active on our feet, and yet permit the great fundamental muscles of the torso to become shortened and ineffectual from lack of use. The figure grows dumpty and wooden and loses its beauty of form and expression. I was once much impressed with the lesson of an engine that had furnished the heart throbs of a great saw mill in Northern Wisconsin, for twenty years, without missing a beat. What enabled that noble instrument to perform its noble work without a break? It was proper care. It had been kept oiled, repaired, ready for use.

Each day before we dress in the morning, we open the window and take full, deep breaths, making sure the lungs are fully expanded; then we reach up and out and down, as though inside a sphere trying to touch its surface, just beyond our reach; then we relax the back, letting go vertebra by vertebra, coming up slowly until straight; next rise up and down on the toes and exercise the knees a few times; lastly run a hundred or more steps. It takes no more time than to dress the hair or clean the nails, but shall we not be in all requests better women than if we neglect, as we sometimes do in our hurry and worry, ever to take a long breath, a good stretch, a thorough relaxation, a full invigoration?

The Kitchen Cabinet

RATHER indeed is the soul which has journeyed through untroubled ways from cradle to mid-life. The sweetest as well as the greatest souls on earth have experienced great difficulties and borne great burdens.

HOT DISHES.

Here is a nice breakfast dish: In a skillet fry out two slices of fat salt pork cut into cubes, in this brown a cup of bread cut in cubes, add an equal amount of cold cooked potatoes cut in dice, when brown add two eggs slightly beaten, heat slowly stirring until the egg is cooked. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Minced Meat on Toast.—Put any cold cooked meat through the grinder and into the saucepan with gravy or stock and seasonings to taste. Let simmer while making fresh toast. Duff the toast after mashing it with a little of the stock. Thicken the meat with cream and a little flour mixed to a smooth paste, cook until well done, then pour over the toast.

Luncheon Dish.—Fry the fat from six slices of good bacon, remove it from the pan; pour six thick slices of ripe tomatoes and fry them in the bacon fat; while they cook make six round slices of golden toast, and punch six eggs; put the toast on a hot platter and a slice of tomato and an egg, then a piece of cooked bacon; dust lightly with salt and pepper and serve at once.

Another which is a great favorite. Prepare a white sauce as follows: A tablespoonful each of butter and flour. When the butter is bubbling hot add the flour and when mixed a cup of rich milk and seasonings to taste. When well cooked add a cup of finely grated cheese, drop in gently four eggs; as soon as the eggs are set remove them and place on a slice of toast, pour the sauce over it and serve at once.

A bean or potato soup is one of the most palatable dishes to serve on a cold night for supper. Oyster stew or cream of tomato soup are both prime favorites. A dish of hot well made cream or milk toast, seasoned with a sprinkling of grated cheese, is a dish that nearly everybody likes.

THOUSAND DOLLARS IS ADDED TO FUND

ENTERTAINMENT FOR STORM SUFFERERS UNDER MAN-AGEMENT OF MRS. DAY
NETS SUBSTANTIAL
SUM.

BENEFIT A BIG SUCCESS

Myers Opera House. Was Packed Long Before Program Began.
Each Number Heartily Applauded.

Approximately eleven hundred dollars were added to the Rock County relief fund for the aid of the cyclone sufferers by the proceeds of the benefit entertainment which was given at the Myers Opera House last evening before an audience which filled every available seat on the lower floor and in the balcony.

Long before eight o'clock the house was filled and late comers could be accommodated only with standing room. The response of Janesville people to the call was most satisfactory but the substantial increase to the fund was possible only after several weeks of consistent work on the part of Mrs. Janet H. Day, who proposed and planned the entire affair and her corps of able assistants.

The program last evening was pleasing in every way and each number was received with hearty applause. It would be difficult to say which number was appreciated most and the audience was favored with numerous encores.

Perhaps the most effective were the three numbers given by the united choirs composed of nearly two hundred voices under the direction of Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park. Their first piece was the "Hallelujah Chorus" of the Messiah which was extremely sung; The "Bridal Chorus" from the "Lohengrin" was the second number, and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah gave opportunity for a most effective rendition.

The orchestra under the direction of George V. Gray favored the audience with three delightful selections at the opening of the first and second parts and at the close of the program.

Aside from the united choirs three selections were sung by the St. Cecilia Male Chorus of twenty voices under the direction of Prof. Wm. T. Thibodeau. The two selections in the first part, "Ecco Quam Bonum" and "The Sabbath Day"; in the second part, "The Night by the Sea," was pleasingly rendered.

The Quartette composed of Messrs. Arthur Schlof, E. Van Pool, Prof. J. S. Taylor and Frank Doune, were enthusiastically received. They sang "Parker's Heronade" and responded to an encore.

The solo numbers of the program were given by Mrs. J. G. Rexford and Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park. Mrs. Rexford appeared in the first part of the program with the selection "Slave Song" by Dol Rieko, which she sang with delightful expression and intonation. Mrs. Parks' selections were "A Birthday by Cowan and Mowbray" in the first part and "The Star of Bethlehem" in the second part.

None and Betty Rowlock in a Dutch character song received hearty applause and responded to an encore. Miss Virginia Drew who was to have given several costume and fancy dances was unable to appear on account of illness. This was also the case with Miss Nina Cator who was to have given a reading.

Miss Gertrude Hemmingsway gave a character sketch, "What's to Be Done" in negro dialect in a most delightful manner. The piece treated the "ole nunny" version of the woman suffrage question and was very humorous. Mrs. Day who had not intended to appear on the program found it necessary to give two readings to "fill in" the program. These were given in her usual pleasing style and were heartily applauded. The last reading, "Father Paul's Sermon on the Mount" was a Irish dialect piece which was read with rare touches of humor and pathos.

The selection "Stars of the Summer Night" sung by the Husk Lyceum Glee club which is trained under the direction of Prof. Emil L. Roethlis, was most acceptable. The entire program showed exceptional thought on the part of the management. Everyone who took part donated his or her services and there was practically no expense connected with the entire entertainment. The use of the opera house was given by Manager Peter L. Myers and Mrs. Day and the young ladies who so ably aided in preparing the program and selling the tickets expected no reward, except the satisfaction of work well done.

"See!" she said. "My kind those my Papa-San—please, so they will think he has know you, ne?"

Phil obeyed the hint, but Haru's cheeks as she saluted her friends were flushing painfully. It was her first subterfuge employed in a moment of embarrassment with the realization that her home was near and that she friends, aren't we?"

was violating the code of deportment from babyhood hedges about the young Japanese girl with a complicated etiquette.

The women they had passed looked back enviously at the foreigner walking with her. One, a girl of Haru's own age, called smilingly after her:

"Koban Mukojima do sho?" Phil understood the question. Was she going to Mukojima—to the cherry festival—tonight? His eyes sparkled at the thought.

"No!" he said. "No, he would be there too. He had appreciated the quick wit of her subterfuge. The sleek little brown saint, after all!

"I think I did that rather well," he said when they had passed out of earshot. "They'll think your honorable parent and I exchange New Year's gifts at the very least."

A little smile of irrepressible fun was lurking under Haru's flush. "You have said how is Papa-San flu-ma-thu-um," she said. "In our street he has some large faves, for because he so old and no have got."

Phil laughed aloud. "Look here, little Haru," he said, "you and I are going to be great friends, aren't we?"

He looked down at the slim, nervous girl, so soft and firm of flesh, so delicately turned and modeled. He knew a jade bracelet in Yokohama that would mightily become it. He would write tonight and have it sent up. "When can I see you again, eh?"

"My no can tell," she answered. "So come more far. My house very near now."

He caught her hand. It was almost as small as a child's with its delicate wrist and slender fingers. "Give me a kiss and I will let you go," he said.

As she shrank back indignantly against the palms, her free hand flung across her face, he threw his arms about her and strained her to him. She wrestled against him with little inarticulate sobs, but he lifted her face and kissed her again and again.

He released her, breathing hard, the veins in his temples throbbing, his lips burning hot. He stood a moment looking after her as, white faced and breathless, she fled down the bamboo lane.

CHAPTER X.
THE BISHOP ASKS A QUESTION.

BISHOP RANDOLPH lived in the quarter of Tokyo called "Ryūkyū," a section of "made ground" in the bay composed, as the proverbial saying is, of the proverbial tomato cans. It was not high and low, and its lower canal in the old days had formed the boundary of the extraterritorial district given over by a reluctant government to the residence of foreigners.

It was a mile from the great double moated park of the imperial palace, from the district and the foreign office, whither scarcely a generation ago representatives of European powers had galloped on horseback with a mounted guard against swashbuckling "two sword men."

The streets, however, on which once an American secretary of legation so spurring had been cut in two by a single stroke of a thrusting samurai sword were peaceful enough in this era of Meiji. The cathedral, the college, the low brown hospital and the lines of red brick mission houses stood on grassy lawns behind green hedges which gave a suggestion of a quiet English village.

A couple of the smaller legations still clung to their ancient sites, and the quaintly bearded besides a score of ambassadors European residences and a modern hotel.

In the rectory the bishop sat at table with the archbishop of the Russian cathedral, a man of seventy-eight, gray bearded and patriarchal, another St. Francis Xavier. In this foreign field the pair had been friends during more than a score of years.

Both were equally broad minded, had long ago thrown down the sectarian barriers too apt to prevail in less restricted communities. To a large extent they were confidants. The archbishop spoke little English and the bishop no Russian and but "mediated"

French, as he termed it, so that their talk was habitually in Japanese.
When they had finished eating both men bowed their heads in a silent grace. The Russian as he rose made the sign of the cross.

As they entered the library a wringled house servant beckoned in his breathless behind them.

"Will the three eminent guest deign to partake of a little worthless tobacco?" he inquired in the ceremonious homilies of the vernacular.

The bishop eminent shook his head, and the archbishop answered: "Honorable thanks, Mōri-San. Our guest angustly does not smoke."

At the table they had been talking of the great dream of both—the Chris-tianization of modern Japan. The archbishop continued the conversation
now:

"As I was saying, the great stumbling block is the language. It is all right for you and me, who have helped twenty years at it, but our helpers haven't. His code of courtesy forbids a Japanese to seem to correct even his own boys—so the bishop affectionately referred to his younger confidants—"was preaching the other day on 'The Spiritual Attributes of Manhood.' He meant to use the word 'nobleman' in the wide sense. He preached, he thought, with a good deal of success.
The people seemed particularly graceful and attentive. Afterward he asked an old Japanese what he thought of the subject. The man replied that he had felt much instructed to find there were so many things to be said about it. He added that he himself generally aid them boiled. My young man had used the word 'nobleman'—
"The Spiritual Attributes of Corrupt!" And a whole sermon on it! Imagine it!"

The archbishop threw back his head and laughed. Then the conversation drifted again into the serious. "Of course," said the bishop, "there is at bottom the oriental inability to separate racial traits, to realize that Christianity has made Christendom's glories, not her shame. The Japanese are essentially a spiritually minded people. Some of the worst's most common vices they are strangely without, and their code of everyday morals —well, we can throw very few stones at them there."

The archbishop nodded.
"By the way," he said presently, changing the subject, "I passed your now chapel the other day." It is very handsome. Your niece, I think you told me, built it. May I ask—"Yes," said the host, "it is my dear sister's child, Barbara, John Fair-fax's daughter."

A look passed between them, and the bishop rose and paced up and down, a habit when he was deeply moved. "She came back to Japan with me," he continued. "I am to take her to see the chapel this afternoon. Yesterday she told me she intends it to be dedicated to her father's memory."

"For a moment
there was no reply. Then the other said, 'You have heard nothing of Fairfax all these years?'
"Not a word."
"She has never known?"

The bishop shook his head.
"She believed he died before her mother left Japan," he paused before the window, his back to the other. "He was my friend," he said, "and I loved him. I gave my sister to him, and she loved him too."

"I remember," said the archbishop slowly. "She went back to America from Nagasaki. How strange it was she never told any one why she left him!"

"Never a word. She died before I went to America again. She left me a letter which hinted at something wholly unforgettable, almost unthinkable, it must have seemed to her."

"And he?"
"Disappeared. He was thought to have gone to China. Perhaps he is alive there yet. I have always wondered. If so, how is he living—in what way?" The bishop turned abruptly.

"In view of what we know can I lend myself to the dedication of this house of our Lord to a memory that may be infamous? I ask you as a friend."

"The older man was a long time silent.
"His ways are past finding out," he said at length. "I am conscious sometimes of a hidden purpose in things. The daughter's memory of her father is a beautiful thing. Let us not destroy it."

"The bishop and the ambassador when the former's call was ended that afternoon found Barbara with Haru in the garden pagoda. She sat on its wide ledge, Haru at her feet in a dainty kimono of pale gray cotton crêpe with a woven pattern of plum blossoms. The oval Japanese face showed no trace now of the passionate Anger's kisses. If it had left a trace, the trace was hidden under the racial mask that habitually glosses the surface of oriental feeling.

Barbara had fallen in love with Haru's pliant personality, with her fragile loveliness, her quaint phrasing, her utter desire to please. While Patricia deplored her engaging freckles the teenaged court she had engaged the Japanese girl bring her smiles and play. Afterward Haru in her pretty broken English had told her stories, old legends that are enshrined in the golden dances, of the forty-seven ronin and of the great shogun who slept by the huge stone lanterns in Ueno park.

When Barbara and her uncle started on their walk—he was to show her the chapel—the ambassador strolled with them as far as the main gate of the compound. A string of carriages from the imperial stables, each with the golden chrysanthemum on its lacquered panel, was just passing. Their occupants, some of whom were Japanese and some foreign, wore in naval uniform, and their breasts covered with orders.

"The officers of the foreign squadron, no doubt," said the ambassador,
"being shown the sights of the capital.
Day after tomorrow the minister of marine begins the official entertainment with a ball in their honor. You will enjoy that, Barbara."

"I wish," said the bishop, "that the pastoralists who are so fond of talking of diplomatic 'strain' could see a Japanese welcome. The stay of these officers will be one long festivity. Yet to read a continental journal you would think every other Japanese was carrying a club for use if they ventured aboard."

The ambassador watched the cavalcade thoughtfully. For weeks the newspapers of European capitals had talked of conflicting interests and unreconciled differences between the two countries. He knew that there was little in this, in fact, save the journalistic necessity for "news" and a nervousness that seems periodically to oppress highly strung chancelleries as it does individuals. Beneath this surface current diplomacy had gone its even, temperate way, undisturbed. But as a trained diplomatist he knew that the most baseless rumor, if too long persisted in, had grave danger, and he had welcomed the coming of the squadron for the sake of the effect on foreign public opinion of the lavish and open hearted hospitality which Japan would offer it. When the captains had whirled past he bade the others goodbye and went back to his books.

Walking up the sloping "Hill of the Spirit" to the templed knot behind it, Barbara felt in tune with the afternoon.

As they walked Barbara told of the adventure of the evening before with the wolfhound and of the review of the morning, and the bishop, shrewdly regarding her, thought he had never seen her so beautiful.

"What has happened—who has happened," Barbara asked, for he had suddenly guessed he knew what that look meant.

Her eyes dropped, and her rising color confirmed his idea. "I don't know!
Do you?"

He took out his pocketbook and handed her a clipping from a morning newspaper. It chronicled the arrival of the yacht Barbara.

She looked at him out of eyes brimming with laughter.
"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things—
Of cubes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings—

ACTUAL STARVATION.
Facts About Indigestion and Its Relief That Should Interest You.

Although indigestion and Dyspepsia are so prevalent, most people do not thoroughly understand their cause and cure. There is no reason why most people should not out anything they desire—they will only show it carefully and thoroughly. Many actually starve themselves into sickness through fear of eating every good looking, good smelling, and good taste-ing food, because it does not agree with them.

The best thing to do is to let yourself digest any good food.
We believe we can relieve Dyspepsia.
We are so confident of this fact that we guarantee and promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who will use it, who is not perfectly satisfied with results which it produces. We exact no promise, and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely, nothing could be fairer.
We are located right here and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one troubled with indigestion or Dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. Then, if not satisfied, come to us and get your money back. They are very pleasant to take and to soothe the irritable stomach, to strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, and to promote a healthy and natural bowel action, thus leading to perfect and healthy digestion and assimilation.

A 25c. package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets furnishes 15 days' treatment.
In ordinary cases this is sufficient to produce a cure. In more chronic cases, a longer treatment, of course, is necessary, and depends upon the severity of the trouble. For such cases, we have two larger sizes which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A YANKEE'S RETORT.

By A. W. MACY.

While the northwest boundary dispute was raging between the United States and Great Britain the United States government appointed a commission to audit the expenses of a certain Indian war in Oregon and Washington. The commission made an official visit to Victoria, B. C., to audit the claims of the Hudson Bay company, which had been furnished with supplies to the United States.

With the commission were several United States naval officers, and in honor of the visitors Sir James Douglas, governor of British Columbia, gave a banquet, which was also attended by various British officials and colonial dignitaries. During the banquet some one unfortunately mentioned the boundary dispute, and the discussion immediately waxed warm. An American suggested that a commission might be elected by which England would yield her claim to certain territory. Sir James immediately arose, and in a dignified and pompous manner, said: "The British crown, sir, never alienates the soil." Thereupon a member of the commission, a Yankee named Grover, arose and said: "You will please make an exception, sir, in favor of the United States, as we are under obligations to the British crown for most of the soil we have." "Pass the wine; pass the wine!" exclaimed Sir James;
"let us all take a drink."

Parisians Fond of Cider.

Cider is one of the most popular drinks in Paris. The entire annual consumption for France is about which is produced in the five departments of Normandy.

Flowers of the Sea.

The sea has flowers as the land has, but the most brilliant of the sea flowers bloom not upon plants, but upon animals.

Place Duty First.

To hesitate is to yield, to deliberate is to be lost; we must act always on principle; in doing our duty we must never pause to calculate consequences.

ECZEMA REMEDY ALSO WASHES PIMPLES
AWAY.

No remedy that I have ever used for eczema, psoriasis, and all other diseases of the skin has given more thorough satisfaction than the D. D. D. Proscription for Eczema.

A 25c trial bottle can be secured at once.

My patrons find that D. D. D. not only gives instant relief to the itching, burning skin, quickly driving out all the disease germs, but it is also the most delightful wash for the complexion, they ever used. Absolutely harmless and pleasant to use, D. D. D. cleanses the skin of all minor impurities, such as rashes and pimples, at night, and leaves the skin clear and smooth as that of a child.

It is now generally known that there is nothing that can equal D. D. D. as a household remedy for all skin troubles no matter what they are.

I, myself, am so fully convinced of the merits of this wonderful remedy that I will charge you nothing if the first full size bottle of D. D. D. does not make good every claim.

Better drop it and talk it over with me anyhow.

THE TIME.
We stood upon the stair one night, While dimmer grew the hallway light;
I pressed her little hand so tight She cried: "Please stop it, Mister!" Where is her hand?

I know 'twas wrong to act that way, I know 'twas wrong the thief to play;
But ere from her I stole away I bent right down and kissed her.

The pumpkin is a gorgeous fruit. I'm glad that farmers always show it. We should unite its charms to toast, the cook, the farmer, and the poet. It should appeal to every heart, the pumpkin succulent and mellow. The finest thing in all the world, though it has a stink of yellow, it looks so tempting in the fields that it will make a hungry man turn; when plucked by skillful hands it yields the autumn pie and jack-o'-lantern. The pumpkin pie—O jumping ginger! No other pie has such a delicate flavor, no other pie can be so easily made, no other pie can be so easily eaten. No other pie can be so easily made, no other pie can be so easily eaten. No other pie can be so easily made, no other pie can be so easily eaten.

mouth rock and Boston pike, and should inspire the poet's rages for more than eagles and the like. It heats the bulwarks and casemates of which our patriots declaim; indured by Wiley and Wood Hutchins it looks in an eternal flame.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

CLASSICAL MUSIC.
Classical music is a depressing commodity which operates mainly to decrease the box receipts. It may be otherwise described as a mild sort of portwine which everybody pretends to enjoy but nobody understands except the critic for the morning paper, and sometimes the critic for the evening paper. The average man in the street would admit that he is in love with the music, but he would not confess that classical music gets his goat. Most of our classical music is imported at great expense, but a good deal of the most classical never gets past the board of health. It requires a $5 bill and several kilowatts of self-control to enjoy classical music properly, and it is feared that it will never become truly popular until it is sandwiched in between ragtime and a buck-and-wing dance. It is a painful sight to see a large, overfed citizen trying to digest an orchestra program by the hope of hearing "Old Hickory" with variations as an appetizer for classical music. It is to subdue a cowlick. Since fashion set the seal of approval upon classical music our retail halls are thronged with enthusiasts who couldn't tell a Beethoven symphony from a watercolor of Niagara Falls by moonlight, and this has led to considerable acle four-furling us to whether Paderewski composed "The Pirates of Penzance" or "The Lady of the Lake." Every community is justly suspicious of the man who can sit through a Grieg concerto without stifling a yawn or looking at his watch. The best classical music is always written in some language that sounds like a violent altercation in a Chinese laundry, and it is never really enjoyed until you can't scramble through the first act with a lubricator.
